

Abstract

The invention relates a radar system composed of one or more individual radars, for example for motor vehicles, at least one system of which has both means for sensing and means for transmitting communications data, which means can be operated simultaneously.

Fig. 1